Wednesday, Feb 19th, 6:00pm to 8:00pm

PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARIES: HOW DID THEY GET STARTED? HOW HAVE THEY EVOLVED?

Speaker: Sam McClure, Electronic Records Program Director, NARA

Sam McClure is the Electronic Records Program Director of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). Before assuming this role he served as Deputy Director of NARA's system of Presidential Libraries. Sam served in a variety of roles in the central office staff for Presidential Libraries starting in 2003, including serving as the principal liaison for Presidential Libraries to NARA's Electronic Records Archives project (ERA), the agency's groundbreaking initiative to preserve and provide access to the electronic records in its custody. He started his NARA career in 1996 as an archivist at the George Bush Presidential Library and later worked as an archivist with the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff, where he reviewed Nixon White House Tapes for public access. A native of Louisiana, he has a BA in history from Louisiana Tech University and a MA in history from Texas A&M University.

In honor of President's Day, Sam McClure, former Deputy Director of NARA's system of Presidential Libraries, will describe the founding of the system and the evolution of the legal frameworks governing the establishment of new Libraries and the records held by these Libraries. Sam provided a presentation on this same topic at a joint ARMA NOVA/ARMA Metropolitan Maryland in Maryland in May 2019, to rave reviews. If you missed that meeting, this is your chance to hear from him!
