UNIQUE CHALLENGES OF MANAGING WHITE HOUSE RECORDS

Speaker: Philip Droege, Director of Records Management, White House

Managing presidential records is a unique responsibility: Obligations under the Presidential Records Act, technological challenges of both paper and electronic records, adapting records management practices to each new administration and dealing with the upheaval of a Presidential transition.

Philip Droege currently serves as the Director of the White House Office of Records Management. He grew up in the Maryland suburbs of Washington, DC and graduated from Concordia College in Seward, Nebraska in 1989. Mr. Droege started his professional life as a high school teacher on Long Island, New York. In July of 1990 he moved back to Washington, DC to take a job in the White House as a Records Technician. During his 32 years in the Office of Records Management, he has served in six Presidential Administrations as a Records Analyst, Supervisor, Deputy Director and his current position as Director, which he has held since 2004.
